JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION

As Seen by One of Our Bellefonte Gentlemen

PROF. JAMES R. HUGHES

Gives a Complete Account of His visit to the Jamestown Exposition. A Story That is Worth your time to Read

THE HISTORICAL PART OF THE FAIR

The attention of the American people is at last turning in fitting measure toward what in some respects is the most attractive and most interesting of all the great Expositions which have been held in this country. Like its predecessors the Jamestown Ter-centennial Exposition was quite incomplete at the opening day, perhaps a little more so than the other Expositions, and the many thousands who with great expectations wended their way thither on that interesting inaugural day, were grievously disappointed. And the unpreparedness of the hotels at that time, to accommodate the immense throng in attendance, which led to the most extravagant charges on every hand only intensified the disappointment over the unfortunate incompleteness of the buildings and grounds. The logical and natural result of this state of affairs was that the interest in the Exposition received a setback all over the country through the influence of these disappointed visitors on the opening day and especially the newspaper correspondents whose first impressions of the Exposition by no means found favorable expressions in the columns of the influential newspapers which they represented. But time is a wonderful healer. A marvelous transformation has been wrought at the scene of the Exposition.

The scene is truly an attractive one. The grounds covering over four hundred acres of land space and forty acres of water space between piers are enclosed in a very novel and original manner by a floral fence which gives to the entire site the effect of a beautiful park. Vines native to the southern climate cover the wire mesh. At each post has been planted a trumpet vine and between the pairs crimson rambler rosebushes. Between these honeysuckles are growing with their pleasant fragrance. Within this enclosure of flowering beauty you find the numerous buildings of colonial style of architecture entirely complete with their many features within of such an interesting and educational character that they must be seen to be appreciated. Written words are entirely inadequate to do justice to the occasion. Suffice it to say that the buildings and their contents are today fulfillingin every particular the original design of this great Exposition.

The hotel accommodations which at first were so unsatisfactory today can meet the needs of fifty thousand people. So that every preparation necessary to insure such success as is due to an Exposition of the historical import which attaches to that at Jamestown is completed and it might be well observed that this Exposition not only includes the salient features of those held at Chicago and St. Louis but also presents original features that are made possible by reason of its location near Hampton Roads, the scene of the conflict between the Monitor and Merrimac during the Civil War, and within a short distance of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, New Port News, the great shipbuilding centre, Fortress Monroe, Old Point Comfort—excursionists retreat—The Soldiers Home, The Colored Industrial Institute, the sea side resorts of Ocean View and Virginia Beach and the thrifty city of Norfolk.

The earlier feelings of disappointment have gradually vanished and today the people of the nation always loyal to the national enterprises of historic interest and possessed of an innate fondness for excitement are enthusiastically planning to visit Jamestown in greater crowds almost than have attended any other enterprise of this character. And is it any wonder when one considers what a delightful trip it is two hundred miles from Baltimore to Norfolk down the Chesapeake bay in those palatial boats of the York River Line. Recently the writer accompanied by a party of fair enthusiasts left Baltimore at 7:30 a. m. in the steamer Atlanta of the York Line and enjoyed to the full the pleasures of a two hundred mile trip on the silvery Patapsco and Chesapeake passing in full view of Annapolis on the right shore and arriving at Norfolk at 7.30 p. m., whence a trolley ride of about twenty minutes duration brought us to the Park Place Inn on the outskirts of Norfolk which is conducted in a very satisfactory manner and at very moderate rates by Mrs. J. S. Hutchison. The accommodations of this homelike Inn are limited to fifty.

We spent two days here starting out early in the morning for the Exposition which was only a twenty minute trolley ride away. It must be remembered that it was found impracticable to hold the Exposition at Jamestown on Jamestown Island because the latter during the last two centuries has gradually washed and drifted away until now it only remains as a small island. It was then decided advisable to hold the Exposition near Hampton Roads because of the historic interest centered there and the many surrounding points of accessibility that would prove very attractive for visitors in addition to the Exposition itself.

We are very frank in saying that we were agreeably surprised to find the Exposition as beautiful and as interesting as it was, for the early criticism of impulsive spirits had styled the enterprise "The Jamestown Imposition," and therefore we had not anticipated the pleasure and satisfaction which were really in store for us. The whole affair is beautifully designed and executed. The exhibits in the Government, States' Mining, Liberal Arts, Manufactures and Transportation, Fisheries, Food Products, Historical, Colored, Education, Porto Rico, Phillipines and many other special buildings are fully up to standard. The amusements including Cairo and the realistic cyclorama of the encounter of the Monitor and Merrimac on the "War Path" are exceptionally good and the spectacular play of "Pocohontas" is proving for Jamestown what "America" did for Chicago. The Naval features which include the constant presence on the waters of Uncle Sam's imposing war vessels and suggest the most artistic pier in America built by the Government at very great expense and the daily military manoeuvres by State and Government troops on the immense parade ground coupled with the fine music given daily by the best bands and organists from this and other countries together with other special features such as wild west shows etc, make up a well rounded program of attractions never equalled in this country. The Penna. State building is a perfect reproduction of Independence Hall, Phila. After rushing the fair for two long days another very enjoyable water journey up the Chesapeake on the Atlanta brought us to Baltimore at 7:30 p. m. The return trip was made particularly pleasant through the courtesies of Captain James and First assistant Engineer Carrol.

We can conscientiously advise any one who is able to visit this exposition, to do so. A personally conducted four days tour at a cost of $32.00 will be organized if a sufficient number express a desire to participate. The party would be limited to fifty people.

The charge of $32.00 would include a round trip ticket over the P. R. R. from Bellerontе to Baltimore, round trip ticket over the Chesapeake Steamship Co's. Day Line to Old Point Comfort, meals and stateroom berth (for night occupancy only) on steamers, hotel accommodations in Baltimore Old Point Comfort and on the Exposition Grounds, admission tickets on the two days and the special automobile trips through the Exposition Grounds.

If ten or more persons of the party should desire to visit Washington, they could do so upon their return to Baltimore. Any person who desires to join such a touring party may send their names to the Daily News office and secure the details of the itinerary at the sametime. Such parties may be organized at any time between now and Dec. 1, when the Exposition closes. Such a trip would be attended with pleasure long to be remembered.

Col. E. R. Chambers for District Attorney.

Colonel E. R. Chambers, in his letter accepting the nomination for District Attorney, said, "The farmer who works from day light to late evening at hard labor in order to meet his living expenses, should not be forced to pay extra taxes for mistakes made in our criminal courts. Larency, burglary and murder have run riot in our county of late, and if I am elected I pledge myself to brake this up and stop it without unnecessary expense to the tax-payer."

He is acknowledged to be the best criminal lawyer in this county. Will you vote for him?

NO DANGER OF LOSING

Williamsport Team Certain to Win Tri-State Championship

PRAISE FOR WOLVERTON

For Getting Together and Holding a Championship Team, the Best the City Has Ever Had.

HARRISBURG FOLLOWING CLOSE BEHIND

All over the Tri-State circuit it is an accepted fact that Williamsport has the pennant cinched. To manager Wolverton must be given the lion's share of praise for the great race put up by the Millionaires all season. Last spring before the clubs accepted protection, Wolverton had a full team signed. It was certainly discouraging when a number of these men had to be dropped and others signed to fill their places. But this task Wolverton did, and got after Clark Griffith, and as a starter signed Sallee and Whalen. The pitching staff of the locals is without a peer in the Tri-State. Wolverton made the team so strong in every position, so well balanced, that the other teams found them the hardest kind of a proposition. There was nothing meteoric in the Millionaire's playing, but they were steady as clock work in every game. Each man had confidence in the other and there was no calling each other frosts as some of the visiting teams have done. Throughout the season there were many critical situations to be faced, but the manager with consummate skill always had a first-class man to send into a breach. The signing of Vickers, Berry, Barde, O'Hara and Hennessey during the playing season were the strokes of a master hand. Wolverton understands his men and can get any amount of work out of them. He does not want all the glory for the Williamsport victories, but says that credit should be given to Sunny Jim Sebring for his work last year in getting a team together that served as a first-class nucleus for the following year. In spite of the fine playing the local team has been beset by more accidents than any other two teams of the league. The following men were hurt: Miller, Delehanty, Wolverton, Blair, Manning and Gleason. Now Charles will be out of the game for some time. In fact of all such discouragements the team has plodded in the same old way, so that now the pennant is a certainty. It is understood that an effort is being made to have Wolverton manage the team there next year.

Bush House Bar Robbed.

Some time between midnight Saturday night and daylight Sunday morning some person or persons broke into the Bush House bar room by cutting the screen in one of the windows next Spring creek, hoisting the window and crawling into the room. No attempt was made to meddle with the cash register and so far as is known wiskey was the only thing stolen. Just how much was taken is not definitely known, but it was enough to give the thieves a very comfortable jag for Sunday. And that whoever did it, was possessed with a certain degree of consideration was shown by the fact that they must have gone prepared with a bucket or some kind of a vessel, as the wiskey had all been emptied out of several bottles and the latter carefully placed back on the bar. Of course this was no evidence that they thought the bottles more valuable than the wiskey, as it only shows that it was not the bottles they were after.

Arrested at Lewistown.

An Italian that worked around here at one time went over to Lewistown to work and when he left he hadn't any money to pay his board, but he promised as soon he got work he would send the amount he owed.

The boarding boss got anxious about his dough and had a warrant sworn out for his arrest. Policeman Beezer drove across to Lewistown Tuesday arrested the man brought him to Bellefonte and put him in jail. Wonder which would have been the best to have the fellew there to work and earn some money or bring him to the Bellefonte jail for the County to feed and keep. It seems like getting hair off of a toad.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

William A. Houser and Miss Lucy Moerschbacher Married.

On Tuesday evening about 7:30 Miss Lucy Moerschbacher daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moerschbacher became the wife of William A. Houser.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McArdle at the St. John's Catholic Mance on Bishop street.

The bride looked very pretty dressed in a traveling gown of brown serge. After the ceremony they were taken to Milesburg where they took the train for Lock Haven. They will go on to Philadelphia and Atlantic City to spend their honeymoon.

A wedding dinner was served at the Moerschbacher home previous to the wedding ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Houser are well and favorably known in Bellefonte and have hosts of young friends who wish them much joy and happiness through life.

The bride is a young lady who has been thoroughly trained by a good mother and knows exactly how to keep a home pleasant and happy for her husband.

The groom is a moulder by trade, employed at the J. Howard Lingle foundry. He is an industrious, hard working young fellow and we feel sure will do all in his power to make a true, good husband. After an extended wedding tour to different southern cities they will return to Bellefonte and go to housekeeping. After the words were said by Father McArdle that made this happy young couple man and wife. A crowd of young men tied a bunch of tin cans and coal buckets to the cab and the noise they made as the carriage sped through the town was enough to waken old Ned. When the bride and groom walked from the Mance to the cab a lot of little girls showered them with rice and clapped their hands. It was certainly a very happy affair.

Miss Sarah Kelley was the bridesmaid and Mr. Ralph Moerschbacher acted as best man.

This paper joins in with their many friends in wishing them much joy and may a shadow never cross their pathway.

A Frightful Runaway.

On Tuesday afternoon about 3:30 when Harry Rearick one of the Rural Mail carriers was coming toward Bellefonte his horse frightened at sometning coming down the hill near the B. C. freight station and ran away. The horse kicked himself loose from the rig and Rearick was thrown out, with such force that his leg was broken and his body was badly cut and bruised. He was taken to his home in Dr. Hayes Automobile. The buggy and harness was pretty badly broken up.

Tony Torsell Did it.

On Monday evening Tony Torsell after finishing a hard days work at his little cobbler shop on High street was spinning home to beat the band on his bicycle, when near the Mitchell home on Thomas street, he bumped into two Italians who were carrying a monkey, grind organ, some potatoes and lard. Well, the mix-up was great, Tony flew about ten feet in the air, the organ and monkey went another way, the potatoes, lard and two Italians went another. They gathered everything together and went on their way saying nice things to one another.

The Labor Day Picnic.

A great many of the labor organizations are going to picnic at Hecla Park on Monday September 2, which is Labor Day. The Carpenters Union will be there in full force. We dont know whether any special trains will be run or not. A very large crowd from town will go. A band of music has been hired, and a base ball game will be played between two labor organizations, Monday September 2nd is the date.

Face and Arms Burned.

A lad by the name of William Hampton employed at the Brant House to do chores was over where the new grocery store is to be started on Bishop street on Tuesday afternoon and lit a match over an empty gasoline can. The fumes in the can exploded and badly burned the young fellows face and arms. He suffered excruciating pain and was taken to the hospital where his injures were carefully attended to.

Special Meeting.

A special meeting of the K. G. E. will be held in their rooms in the Eagle Block on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is desired as business of importance is to be transacted. Let every member turn out.

HOLD-UP AT LEWISTOWN

Party of Four Went Out to Enjoy Evening Auto Ride.

MET BY HIGHWAYMEN

Revolvers Were Drawn and Victims Were Helpless $25 Procured

NO CLUE TO FIND RASCALS

Lewistown, August 28.—One of the boldest hold-ups ever executed in this community occurred Monday evening about 8 o'clock near High Bridge, on the public road leading from Lewistown to Maitland. At 7 o'clock R. R. Long, Ray Dixon, Charley Bearley and C. R. Knepp, all of Lewistown, left town in Mr. Long's automobile to enjoy the evening in a short cross country ride. When they reached the top of the hill a short distance west of High Bridge four men rushed from behind a tree and surrounded the automobile. The robbers wore dark working shirts and blue overalls and had their faces concealed behind handkerchiefs. When the machine halted the highwaymen demanded all money and valuables in the possession of the four automobilists. A moment's hesitation to yield to the request prompted the villains to draw their revolvers on their victims. The air was filled with the noise and smoke from the discharge of fire arms. Orders were given to the men to step out of the automobile and hold up their hands while their pockets were searched. All alighted except Knepp who sat in bewilderment not knowing what to do. Knepp's disobedience in not responding to the orders caused him to have his coat torn from him while he sat in his seat.

From the pockets of Dixon and Long $25 were taken. Bearley ran away without being compelled to give up any money. Twenty-five cents were procured from the clothing of Knepp. None of the party carried watches or any other valuable articles desirable to the robbers.

After the crime had been committed the rascals fled over the fields in the direction of Maitland. The robbed men ran over the hills toward Lewistown until they met Mr. Forsythe in the public road. While Knepp was on his flight he encountered Forsythe who took him for one of the highwaymen. Forsythe grappled with Knepp and chocked him almost to death before he discovered that he was punishing an innocent man. Forsythe also fell upon Bearley and handed him a few before he discovered his mistake. As yet there is no clue to the quartette of outlaws who committed the act.

Laboring Men's Sermon.

Rev. Dr. Platts who is Acknowledged to be one of the brightest ministers in the Huntingdon Presbytery and in fact in Pennsylvania will talk to the Laboring men of Bellefonte on Sunday morning. Dr. Platts don't use any notes when he delivers a sermon but gives one of those deep heart to heart talks that reaches down deep into the hearts of men. The General assembly of the Presbyterian church has a separate bureau devoted to the interest of Laboring men. At the head of which is Rev. Charles Stetzel of Chicago who himself was a Laboring man. Invitations have been sent to all the Carpenters, Painters, Masons, and Brick layers, Plasters, Barbers, Machinists, Moulders, Pattern Makers, Furnace men to the Logan and Uudine Fire companies and all Laboring men in the fraternal orders in Bellefonte. Special music by the large choir of excellent singers, will be a pleasant feature in the morning service, at 10.30 Sunday morning.

Edward Harper Quite Ill.

The many friends of Edward Harper the young clerk in Hazel Brothers Grocery store feel sorry to know that he is suffering from appendicitis. He took very ill on Sunday afternoon, but his case was not thought serious until Monday when he was hurried to the hospital and was operated on shortly after being admitted. Word from the hospital today is that he passed a fairly good night and his condition is favorable. We sincerely hope he will speedily recover.

COLONEL CLEMENT WILL COMMAND.

General Shake up in the National Guard Officers.

The retirement of Major-General John P. S. Gobin as the acting head of the National Guards of Pennsylvania, gives opportunity for a great shake-up which will eventually place Col. C. M. Clement of the Twelfth regiment, in command of the Third Brigade, and Brigadier General John W. Schall, of the First Brigade had been appointed major general to succeed Major General Gobin says the Sunbury Daily Item.

General Schall will serve only a few days, and will ask to be placed on the retired list before September 1st when he will be succeeded by Brigadier General John A. Wiley, of the Second brigade, who will serve two years, by which time he will have reached the age limit, and will also retire, to be succeeded by Brigadier General C. Bow Dougherty, of the Third brigade.

The promotion of General Dougherty will make Col. Clement the commander of the Third brigade, as he is the senior colonel and next in line.

Col. M. A. Gherst, ordinance officer, and Col. Simon B. Cameron, commissary of subsistence on Major General Gobin's staff, have at their request, been placed on the retired list, and the other members of General Gobin's staff retire with their chief.

This is the greatest shake-up in the general officers of the National Guard since its reorganization under General Hartranft, almost 30 years ago. It means the advancement of many young officers, who have been for years desirous of wearing the stars of a general, but who were deprived of doing so because there were no vacancies.

The Godcharles law, retiring officers at the age of 64, will also relieve a great many other officers who have seen long service in the Guard; but there are plenty to take their places.

Reading to the Front.

Several years ago Reynolds Shope was a poor man. Today he is pretty well off with this world's goods, and he alone deserves the credit for what he is now.

Starting in with a little portable saw mill he cut into the timbers of Centre county and placed the raw material on the market which in return brought him the good old dough. From place to place he bought tracts of timber and moved his mill, and today you can hardly pick out a spot on this side of the Nittany mountains that Mr. Shope has not been cutting down the big pines, chestnuts and oaks and had them hauled to his mill where they were sliced into lumber ready for the market, which was always open to him. Why, because he dealt fair and honestly with his fellowmen. He always gave the full amount and a little over when he had an order to fill. He has built one of the prettiest homes on Thomas street that we have in Bellefonte. Mr. Shope has been cutting at the lower end of the county for the past few months, now he has purchased a splendid tract of lumber of very good white pine and oak located about two miles above Curtin. In a day or two he will move his mill to this place where it will take some time during the winter to finish the job.

Mr. Meehan at the Hatchery.

Mr. Meehan, Superintendent of the Fish Hatcheries throughout Pennsylvania, and his daughter arrived in Bellefonte Wednesday morning and were taken to Pleasant Gap in a carriage. Mr. Meehan is certainly proud of old Centre county's hatchery and expects to make a great many repairs and enlarge the hatchery to double its present size. Fourteen new concrete ponds are being built and the old ones are being raised to conform with the new ones. Before long he expects to have sixty ponds. This is the largest brood trout hatchery in the United States, as more trout are hatched and shipped from the Bellefonte hatchery than any other one in the world, at present they have on hand forty-five million two year old trout and will have five million eggs ready to be hatched in a short time.

Values Toes at $25,000.

Howard Figart, of Altoona, an elevator boy, values his toes at 25,000 the highest price on record. Figart was in charge of an elevator in the Altoona Trust company block, when the car started unexpectedly, and his right foot was caught in the door, all the toes being cut off. He sued the Trust company Thursday for $25,000 damages.

Following Bigger's Example.

By JAMES REILLY.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Mary McKeon.

Temple slipped off his coat and threw it beside the camera case, with a "Watch it" to the white bulldog that sat gravely at the foot of the tree.

Bigger exhibited his teeth in a smile intended to be pleasant and stretched himself out beside the case on the soft mat of pine needles. The walk to the falls had not tired him, but he was well content to lie on the fragrant carpet and doze and dream of cats on fences that were always low enough to bring the feline prey within his reach and of a succession of canine battles in which he was always the victor. At heart Bigger was a child of peace. It was only in his dreams that his visions were tinged with blood.

Here and there through the woods a locust shrilled and the air was vibrant with the song of birds and the soft hum of insect life. Dick Temple had picked out a clump of pines in which to make his camp, and through the leafy aisles Bigger could command a view of the deeper woods beyond and the little river that wound its way through the forest, marking with a tint of more vivid green the undergrowth along its banks.

Down the wind came the faint roar of falling waters where the stream plunged forty feet over the black stones to dance in very joy at the foot of the falls before taking up its course to the river beyond.

Temple had long ago exhausted the photographic possibilities of the falls and departed in the direction of downstream, but the footfalls that roused Bigger from a dream of conquest came from the other way, and Bigger looked up just as the sunlight glinted upon the golden hair and the scarlet coat of a slender girl who under other circumstances would have excited Bigger's entire approval.

From the crown of the golden head to the tip of the dainty russet shoe she was a patrician, one of Bigger's very own sort. If there were bench shows for humans, surely she must be possessed of as many blue ribbons as there were in his own particular cabinet at home.

This being the case, it seemed strange to Bigger that she should share in common with the trampish characters a desire for his master's property, and he emitted a low growl of polite warning.

The girl came steadily forward until she was almost within reach of those powerful jaws; then she paused.

"You are a very bad dog," she scolded gently. "It is very dear of you to keep guard over those things, but don't you know they are not yours to guard!"

Bigger made vigorous dissent to this sentiment, but the girl went on.

"You see," she explained, "Reggy wants those extra plates before the light gets away. I am afraid you are not going to let me have them."

She moved easily toward the case, talking in the same steady voice, and her hand was already upon the holders when Bigger's teeth set firmly in her skirt.

Had it been a tramp Bigger would have sprung at his throat, but he knew that there was some mistake, and he sought only to hold the girl until his master should have come up to accept her explanations. The girl regarded him hopelessly.

"You're a bad, wicked dog," she scolded, "to make so much trouble. When Reg comes I shall have him whip you, and he will come. He is too anxious to wait long for me. Please let me go."

She made a movement to disengage herself, but Bigger growled again, and this time there was a deeper note that warned her that resistance would be met with greater force. She sank helplessly back upon the springy, odorous carpet of nature and settled herself more comfortably.

"I shall have to wait for Reggie," she said, "and he'll be really angry at you if you spoil his chance of getting that view. He's going back to town tomorrow, and he will not have another opportunity."

Bigger preserved a discreet silence. He was too gallant to argue a point with a woman. As long as she remained quiet he had nothing to say. For half an hour she sat there in silence broken only by the chatter of the squirrels and the hum of the summer noises; then there was a crashing sound in the underbrush, and Bigger pricked up his ears, while the girl roused herself to listen.

"Here I am, Reggie!" she called. "Under the pines by your camera! There's a horrid dog here, and he won't let me go."

A loud, clear whistle sounded, but Bigger only growled a protest against obedience and clung to his captive. A moment later Temple burst through the alders that fringed the stream. The girl's face turned crimson.

"If this is your dog," she said, with dignity, "will you kindly call him off? He has kept me a prisoner here for almost an hour, and my brother is waiting for these plates."

"Possibly the dog appreciates the fact that I should need them myself," he said, with a laugh and a sign to Bigger, who released his prisoner and stalked with dignity across to Temple. "You see," he went on, "they happen to be my plates."

He knelt on the ground to shift the used holders to a compartment of the case and change the new ones to a sling carrier across his shoulders. The girl stared at him in astonishment, and he, guessing her thoughts, looked up.

"Permit me to introduce myself," he said, holding up the case. She read the name "Richard Temple" on the silver plate and blushed in confusion.

"My brother, Mr. Storms, has the same sort of case," she explained. "He sent me for more plates, and I thought that these were his and that the dog had strayed."

"Storms?" he said musingly. "You must be Miss Mildred Storms, who is staying over at the Beechman farm?"

The girl nodded, and Temple smiled. "I think I can solve the mystery," he said. "You took the wrong road from the falls. Had you turned to the left instead of the right you would have come to a very similar clump of pines, where, no doubt, your brother's case lies. You can't blame Bigger, can you?"

"He is a dear old faithful," she declared, with foregiveness. "And a perfect gentleman," she added. "He would not bite. He just held me until you came to explain the mistake. I should like to know him better."

"With your permission we will call," he suggested. "Your brother and I belong to the same camera club in town. I did not know that you were his sister. I can take you a short cut to the other clump of pines, and we'll take the plates to him."

Storms was kneeling over his case as they came up.

"I came and got the plates," he explained when their own explanation had been offered and proper introductions accomplished. "I knew you couldn't get very far away, and I did want that picture with the light on the wet rocks. Come over this evening, Temple, and I'll show you my negatives. I go back to town in the morning."

Temple took Bigger over to call that evening and many evenings thereafter. Mildred became his assistant in his photographic trips, but now Bigger only smiled amiably when she came after the plates. It was while they were eating lunch the last day of Temple's stay that she patted the dog's white head and looked up.

"Do you know," she said, "I think that dogs take after their masters."

"As you early gave Bigger a certificate of good character, I feel flattered," he said, with a laugh.

"But I do think so," she insisted.

"Sometimes their masters take after the dogs," he insisted. "Now, when I first saw you Bigger had fast hold of you."

"I don't see what you mean," she said, with a puzzled knitting of the brows.

"Like Bigger, I want to hold on to you," he said as he possessed himself of her hand, "only I want to keep you forever. May I, dear?"

The answer must have been "Yes," for an engagement ring in the form of a dog collar adorns the proper finger.

The Size of the Sea Horse.

The popular mistaken idea as to the size of the sea horse is a constant source of amusement to the guards at the aquarium. According to them, visitors, after looking at the big sea cow and peering into the tank where the turtles lead a placid life, next begin to hunt around among the inhabitants of the big floor tanks to find the sea horse. They reread all the placards and carefully reinspect all the occupants of the big tanks; then, failing to discover any immense fish which closely resembles a horse, they turn to a guard as a last resort. When they are directed to one of the smaller tanks upstairs and when they learn that this supposed monster of the deep never attains a size of more than ten inches they are amazed enough. The specimens of the sea horse at the aquarium are much below the maximum size, and when seen clinging by their curious prehensile tails to the different objects in the tank look more like little chessmen than anything else.—New York Sun.

His Scheme Worked All Right.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone out of town on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of each of the local papers with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was he had clipped out he refused to tell her.

The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband didn't want her to know about.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Immune.

"You'd better get out. Here comes that idiot Boreham, and he's got a story he thinks is new that he'll insist on handing you."

"No, he won't. I'm immune."

"How's that?"

"I told him the story."—Cleveland Leader.

Worse Than He Felt.

Cutting—I suppose it did make you feel mean. Dubbs—Will, I should say! Why, I felt like a plugged nickel! Cutting—Ah! But what a blessing it is that we never feel quite as bad as we look.—Philadelphia Press.

Meeting Trouble.

More people would snap their fingers in the face of trouble if trouble didn't have such a sudden way of swooping down on us.—Chicago Record-Herald.

When a man seeks your advice be generally wants your praise.—Chesterfield.

THE MOTHER ROUGHED IT

And Secured a Heavily Timbered Claim in Washington.

CLAIM WORTH $2000

Two Hundred and Fifty Claims of 160 Acres Each in Washington Thrown Open for Settlement.

MRS. REED OF HATTON 75 YEARS OLD.

Spokane, Wash., August 21.—Two hundred and fifty claims of 160 acres each, in what was until recently part of the Priest river forest reserve, in Stevens county, Wash., north of Spokane, were thrown open for settlement today, entries being made in this city. There were ten women in line, among them Mrs. C. Reed of Hatton, Wash. 75 years of age, who was accompanied by her 54 year old son. She secured one of the heavily timbered tracts. Her son said:

"Mother has been 'roughing it' the last three weeks in the timber belt, cooking for eighteen men in a camp. Part of the time she has been climbing over the hills and through the dense underbrush looking over the land. In some places it was necessary to lower her at the end of a rope from the hills, but she secured the necessary data and with it, when her turn came, she obtained the quarter section she had previously picked out. The claim is worth in the neighborhood of $2,000 and we will improve it at once."

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Mysterious Plague.

Fleeing with their children from a plague which has already claimed 75 little victims, hundreds of residents of Ridgway are finding shelter in neighboring places until the doctors find a true diagnosis of the malady. The local hospital is overcrowded with little sufferers and the number of cases reported is on the increase. The disease attack only children, and most of the victims are between 5 and 12 years old. The symptoms in some details resemble those of spotted fever but the disease does not respond to the treatment given in such cases. Already there has been four fatalities.

To make matters worse there is a heavy epidemic of typhoid, due to the water, and in two weeks over 100 cases were reported by local physicians. There have been many deaths from this cause and it has served to increase alarm to the point of panic.

The exodus began several days ago and it amounted practically to a rout. Of the 4,000 inhabitants 800 have already left and all those who can afford to leave town and preparing to go

The typhoid epidemic will be checked by the condemnation of the springs where the polluted water comes from but the children's plague still baffles the local physician.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great, blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

Old Farmer Jones Says.

If that don't beat the bugs then I never saw any bugs; here we are back from the Business picnic and the only thing I am out is my gold watch, when Sarah and I was out boating I leaned over the boat to far and curplunk went my watch in the bottom of Hecla Lake where I hope it may rest in piece. Robert Cole says the next time he goes down on Broadway, N. Y., he will get me a duplicate I expect to build a house like those fifth ave fellows has, and I just sent Bob down to get a pointer? Well that is jumping some from Hecla to New York but say that picnic was a "cork her" we got on at "Red Roost" so we would not be crowded, and when the train stopped at Nigh Bank, a lady came in to the car where I was she was followed by six children, Conductor Hamilton said excuse me madam is this your family or a picnic, she said this is my family and I want you to understand its no picnic either, then she stacked them all up on the seat right in front of me, she put the larger one on the bottom of the bunch and when the conductor came back she told him that the oldest one was "under five" she wanted to pay the conductor with milk tickets. I said Sarah we will just go through to Mill Hall so we will have a seat coming up, as we can get back in time to get a bottle of warm pop. I suppose you know where Snydertown on the Central R. R. is fifteen miles and thirty cents from Mill Hall, an idea place to write poetry this is a flag station I think the trains stops there Mondays, Thursdays, and Saturdays other days you take a regular train get off two stations beyond and walk back.

Of course we all know that the Central has some fast trains but did you ever ride from Bellefonte to State College on one of those "cold black strap molasses specials?" It is what they call a mixed train, and its well mixed, it stops at every station and a few between and then some besides, actually the stations are so near together that the train has to begin to stop before it commences to start. It was a case of coal, up puff up, pull up and back up. I did not get a chance to smoke up. I just noded to something everytime they would start or stop until my neck was as limber as a garter snake? I would nod at cows or anything and sometimes nothing? and coming down grade you know the engine has to cut loose from the train, go ahead to the next station, and then let the train catch up, they do this so they know which station to back up to first?

The first one of those down grade surprise parties caught me standing on the back platform, I was taking snap shots when some one took a snap shot with a bean blower I remember that when the train struck the back of the engine the door struck the back of my head my hat flew off (like Ed Gates hat did at Nigh Bank and he had to walk to Hecla.) the door flew open, and I flew in so far and fast that I passed the conductor in the aisle, he said getting off, I said no going through he said how does your ticket read, I said one continuous trip, just then I tripped over a valise, he says well your getting it arent you, I says I should say I am getting one continuous trip over every thing from the back door to the front—well he says, you can have it from the front door to the back if you'd rather your ticket is good either way, but I'll have to get the milkin done and feed the pigs?

There it is again Sarah, is bound to go to that Exchange she read in the paper where the Ladies of the M. E. church was going to hold a Ladies Exchange in Brown's store room? now I dont know just what they are at but I imagine they are going to draw some phosphate sacks down over their heads and then you can go up to them and pick one out the same as you would buy a "pig in a poke" I just told her to steer clear of that department as she would do me for the rest of my days and besides a burnt child dreds fire I said they would be poking some old woman on me that had a nose like a parrot and all they were good for was to hang on the cherry tree with their nose and pick cherries with both hands?

Just then Willie spoke up and wanted to know if Wesley Spangler owned Bellefonte, no said I, why do you ask such a question, well said Willie he owns the streets because has old iron piled up on nearly all of the streets and if I run my auto in to one of them piles on water street I propose to collect damages from the Borough, thats all, say while I was sitting in my old arm chair last night my thoughts just wondered back before I moved on to the farm I used to travel "well yes travel" one day when broke I went into a drug store and telephoned a friend of mine for car fare as I was walking out of the drug store a man says twenty cents please. I says what for, he said telephoning. Well I says I havent twenty cents now I said you know me and if my face isent good for twenty cents you'll have to collect from the other end and he did with both feet and from the way I felt I think he must have taken out for long distance I way lucky to escape with my life.

Its better to be born lucky than rich though isn't it? the question is, does it really pay us to be rich when it is cheaper to be poor, We can be poor for nothing and here we struggle night and day to be rich.

The more we sweat the thinner we get the less we sleep the more we are compelled to eat therefore the more we can sleep the less we'll be required to eat, so why sweat to eat when it is cheaper to sleep. Let the rich go to work and we'll all go to sleep that's the best thing to do, did you ever hear of a club called the "mothers little darling" or "sweatless and sleep more's? its a sort of strolling auxiliary to Coxeys Army, it is composed of persons who have had chickens at fifteen dollars each or who have had the rent raised on their existence so often that they find it cheaper to move and to keep moving right along than to ever stop and change a collar if they had one. I once came to the conclusion that the world owed me a living and I started right out to collect it from house to house, did you ever start out to collect your living in that way, did you ever canvass for misfit food that's what I was doing and I missed fit food so much that I had a food fit, a food fit you know is a food fight? a food fight in the stomach is caused from eating scraps or vegetable soup like you get in Bellefonte about twice a week I use to have to stop and "referee a stomach full of scraps."

When I first started out to exchange conversation for cold victuals I use to spend the most of my time standing at front gates trying to guess the names of dogs them days the dogs did not wear collars with their names engraved on, it don't do you know to take a chance on short acquaintance and half the time I would be all mixed up on the gender I'd stand there calling off touser, jip, tray, when I should have been saying sally or molly and saved time, once for an hour I stood at a front gate talking to a dog on a door step without even making him wag his tail, finally the lady of the house raised the window and I says; excuse me madam what kind of a dog is that, she said, it is zinc with a little iron mixed.

I had my eyes examined, after that I could have made that dog wag his tail with a hammer. Just as the lady said that the dog was zinc with a little iron mixed, a short stout policeman grabbed me and started something he couldn't finish, so I sopped up the gutter with that short cop and then stood him up against a lamp post to dry. The lady at the window says what is that, I says "its mud with a little copper mixed." On the side walk in front of the house stood three cans of milk, the lady at the window says, I am looking for some one to put the milk in. Well I says take a good look at me, I'm as deep as the rest and I'm empty too. She shut the window down and gave me a look that cracked the glass, that just done me and I took up farming and got my meals regular, if I don't have much. Well Sarah quit your jawin you can keep a few of them New York boarders if you must. Say Burt I'll be blasted if I don't have some fun out of them boarders and I will tell you all about them the next time I come to town.

Language of Flowers.

Following is a list of flowers with their meanings: Acacia, "concealed love;" arbor vitæ, "unchanging friendship;" apple blossom, "preference;" arbutus, "welcome;" aster, "I will think of it;" box, "constancy;" calla lilly, "beauty;" cedar, "I live for thee;" chrysanthemum, "I love;" caranation (white), "disdain;" caranation (red) "sympathy;" columbine "folly;" dahlia, "forever thine;" daisy (white), "innocence;" forget-me-not, "true love;" geranium, "consolation;" golden rod, "encouragement;" helitrope, "devotion;" hyacinth, "unobstrusive loveliness;" honey suckle, "bond of love" ivy, "fidelity;" lily (white), "sweetness;" lily, (yellow), "gayety;" lies of the valley, "return of happiness;" myrtle, "love;" morning glory, "coquetry;" moss rose, "superiority;" orange blossoms, "chastity;" pansy, "thoughts;" passion flower, "faith;" primrose, "inconstancy;" redrose, "love;" rose (deep red), "bashful shame;" rose (yellow), "jealously;" (white), "purety;" sweet pea, "depart;" tube rose, "dangerous pleasure;" verbena, "pray for me;" violet, "modesty."

Good Thought to Remember.

Preserve me from my callings, snare and hide my simple heart above. Above the thorns of choking core, the gilded baits of worldly love.

Anything allowed in the heart which is contrary to the will of God let it seem ever so insignificant, or be ever so deeply hidden, will cause us to fall before our enemies. Any root of bitterness cherished toward another, any self-seeking, any harsh judgement indulged in, any slackness in obeying the voice of the Lord, any doubtful habits or surroundings, any one of these things will effectually cripple and paralyze our Spiritual life. I believe our blessed Guide, the undwelling Holy Spirit is always secretly discovering these things to us by continual little twinges and pangs of conscience, so that we are left without excuse.

Filth in Spring Creek.

Perhaps no other town in this portion of the state can boast of such a pretty stream running through the very centre of the borough as can Bellefonte boast of Spring Creek, that is, when Spring Creek is fit to boast of, which it is decidedly not at the present time. Since the new pavement was built along the creek the walk has been a pleasant one, but the condition of the creek is enough to make any lover of beauty wish that it might be put in proper order once more. A walk from the falls at the laundry to the Central Pa. station will show almost any kind of rubbish that one would care to see. Boards, planks, cans, stumps, kegs, debris of all characters, baskets, boxes, crates, ashes, boxes, paper and the refuse of homes along Water street all add to the scenery of the creek. Council should see to the matter and should at once take steps to have the creek bed cleaned out before the winter season is upon us, as it will then remain in that condition until next summer at least. If council wishes to add to the general appearance of the town they will look into this matter, and they will not have to look very long till they find the need of work along Spring Creek.

Out of the Channel.

By LYLE WARD SANDERSON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Merton Kester came slowly down the lighthouse stairs. He liked the wind and twist of them. A hazy wish floated through his mind that they might never end. He would like to go on forever, hearing the tap of her little feet on the iron behind him, feeling her hand touch his shoulder every now and then when she grew a bit dizzy with the curve.

The fact was Mr. Kesler's sense of proportion had been rather unsettled since the night before. Then Marion, in that strange, illogical way girls have and in spite of her aunt's skillful, contrary maneuvers, had made the obtuse Mr. Harvey understand that she was not overwhelmed with delight at his invitation to try his new electric launch and within the same five minutes had promised Kesler to visit the light with him, "even if we have to go in a dory."

It had been somewhat hard for Mr. Kesler when he came down to the cape on his short vacation to find his old playmate absorbed by the wealthy Mr. Harvey. It was true that Marion did not appear very happy, but her aunt certainly seemed at peace with all the world and made an extremely willing chaperon on the many trips which that gentleman was constantly planning. This had been Kesler's first chance.

After thanks and farewells to the old captain, Kesler guided his companion down the steep path to the little, pebbly beach, where their boat awaited them. It was not a dory, but a gay little pleasure craft, bright with many cushions. Kesler helped Marion in, feeling a keen regret that he could not put her into the handsomest launch on the coast.

There was no hint of regret in Marion's face as she picked up the rudder ropes and the boat swung off. The sun was warm, but the breeze, filled with the tang of the sea, blew the girl's bright hair about her face and brought a sparkle to her brown eyes.

"And over the sea lies Spain," sang the girl happily.

"You'd like to visit the old world, wouldn't you, Marion? You must go some day," said Kesler, wondering how he would feel if he should know that Harvey and Marion were journeying about Europe together.

"Some day," repeated the girl softly, her dark eyes dreaming, then smiling into his. She was quite willing to push everything but the present moment into the indefinite future.

The man hesitated a moment, then said, with a note of entreaty in his voice: "May I row you over to Turbet's creek before we go back? It's such a quaint, Dutchy little place, with its old wharfs and fishermen's houses, that I want to see it again. You know my vacation ends tomorrow."

Marion's face suddenly flushed till it was the deep pink of the wild roses that grew along the shore.

"I'd love to go with you," she answered, "only—well, you see, after all aunt told Mr. Harvey he might take us out in his launch at 5, and she'll be much displeased if I am not at home."

"Oh, I see," said Merton Kesler rather blankly. "I'd better hurry, then."

His mouth suddenly became a straight line. He began to pull with long even strokes. "Harvey can give her everything in the world," he thought, with remorse and some bitterness, "and he is a very decent fellow besides—aside from being a snob. If ever a girl was born for riches she was. What right have I to ask her to share my mean little salary? 'Tis a good thing my vacation is nearly over; I might say something foolish and make her unhappy. But, oh, may she not smile at me again before we reach the farther side of the little bay."

"The tide is running out fast," said Marion, looking down through the clear water to the yellow sands.

"We'll strike the channel soon," returned Kesler, pulling himself together with an effort. "I can never tell exactly where it is when the wind roughs the whole bay. Great day for sailing. Wish we had a yacht, Marion."

"Oh, I like this little boat fully as well," declared the girl contendedly. Then suddenly cried, "It's growing shallow, sailor boy; look out!"

Kesler's oars stopped in the air. That was the name she had called him when, as children, they had built many dream ships together.

The oars made a savage swoop into the water, the boat shot half its length ahead, then stopped with a jerk, its nose buried in the sand.

"Great Scott, we've struck on the flats! Jerk up the rudder, Marion, while I push her off. Then, after an unavailing effort: "It's a mercy this oar is stout. No, don't push, child; sit still."

"But the tide is just racing out," objected Marion, while all of the man's efforts simply caused the obstinate little craft to grind deeper into the sand.

Wrath and mortification struggled on Kesler's face. "It's bad enough to have to take the princess out in a mean little rowboat," he broke out, "but to shore her on a sand bank and not be able to pull her off is absolute disgrace."

From far up the bay came the sound of distant puffing, and Kesler, glancing up, had the pleasure of seeing a new, shining launch coming rapidly down the channel toward the stranded boat. Still tugging and pulling ineffectually, he turned angrily to the astonished girl.

"Your aunt will be pleased to find you here, Marion. Good heavens, why did you ever come off with me? You ought to be in that launch this minute. You don't belong here"—his wrath poured out on her—"you love luxury; you know you love it like a cat. Harvey's not good enough for you; nobody is. I'm not. He wants you. Of course I want you many times more, but you're crazy to come off with me. He'll be angry and 'twill serve you right. I'm going to signal when he gets nearer and get you over to the channel if I have to carry you. I hope this will teach you a lesson!"

Back of the anger in the man's face the girl read something else and sprang to her feet, crying, "Wait, Merton; don't signal!" With a swirl and a splash she landed knee deep in the water, one hand gathering up her skirts, the other grasping the boat line, while the boat, lightened of her weight, floated a bit. "I don't belong in the launch. I'd rather be here with you," she said defiantly.

"Marion, what do you mean, dear?" asked Kesler, staring at the little figure by his side as if he was just waking out of a sleep.

The girl suddenly began to cry. "I thought I'd better be helping you—helping you pull this boat," she sobbed, "than riding round in an old launch with a man—I don't like. But if you don't want me—I can take him, I suppose." Her voice died away as she struggled vainly to keep her wind blown hair out of her face, her skirts from the water and the tears from blinding her eyes.

"He shall never have you," declared Kesler fiercely, dropping the rope and catching the girl in his arms. "Little comrade, do you mean it? I do want your help, little girl, and I will make you happy. Oh, don't hide your face, dear! Your hair is so lovely—but it's dreadfully in the way!"

The ubiquitous Mr. Harvey, as his launch came swiftly down the channel, noted with astonishment two persons over toward the lighthouse wading slowly through the shallow water. He thought at first that he recognized the girl's white sweater and her green skirt, which she held gathered about her knees. The gulls circled over their heads and the sea wind blew the girl's bright hair all about her face. The man waded very close to her side. The pair seemed in no particular hurry. Behind them bobbed a little white boat.

Caught on a Fishhook.

Who that has fished has escaped getting a fishhook caught in a thumb or finger? There is nothing more painful and more difficult to relieve than this simple little incident. The first impulse of the fisher man or woman is to try to remove the hook the way it got caught in the fish, and the more it is pushed back to release the tip the more it cuts and hurts the flesh. On account of the peculiar shape of a fishhook it is necessary to push it all the way through, if the hook is one of those without the loop or eye at the upper end, or else it must be pushed through until the tip of the hook is cleared, and then a pair of tweezers will serve to snap the metal and let the hook be taken out of the flesh. Sometimes a good sized knife will do the hook cutting if tweezers are not handy. The wound made by the hook should be thoroughly cleansed with hot water and perhaps some disinfectant, after which it should be covered with a soothing ointment and then carefully bound with lint or a bandage.—New York Herald.

The "Woman From England."

One of the most curious myths of the middle ages, singularly false and flagitious in its character, but so persistent that it eventually attained general belief, was the story of "Pope Joan," the woman pope who was supposed to have sat in St. Peter's chair about midway of the ninth century. For 200 years in the great cathedral at Siena, Italy, along with the busts of all the other popes, there stood a bust of this mythical female bearing upon it the inscription, "John VIII., a Woman From England." This bust was put in its place by ecclesiastical authorities in the year 1400, without protest from any source, and in pursuance of the universal popular belief that the eighth John had indeed been a woman, and this in spite of the fact that the personal history of the real John VIII., who was a man and a Roman and the defier of the Emperor Charles the Bald, was open to the scholars of the world. It was only at the beginning of the seventeenth century that the bust of the "woman from England" was taken down.—Argonaut.

According to History.

A New York man, who spends a portion of the summer each year in England, tells of an amusing incident in connection with his first visit to Richmond castle. On that occasion he was accompanied by a guide who relied for his information mainly on a guidebook, which from time to time he would furtively consult if he thought the visitor was not looking his way.

"What is the height of this fine old keep?" asked the New Yorker.

"According to hist'ry," replied the guide, "it's ninety-two feet."

Similar replies were made to other questions of a like nature, each being vouchsafed with the assurance that it was "according to hist'ry."

Finally there was reached a part of the battlements where the hill on which the castle stands descends abruptly to the river.

"Pretty steep descent!" exclaimed the American.

"Yes, sir," came from the guide in his monotonous tone. "According to hist'ry, it's almost perpindicular!"

Persian Ideas.

An American traveler in Persia learned that the common soldiers of that country supposed that the English practice of firing a salute at the burial of a soldier had for its object the driving away of devils. Other mistaken impressions no less absurd he reports in his "Persian Life and Customs."

A village soldier asked me if I knew of dog worshipers. I told him I had heard of fire worshipers, cow worshipers and the like, but not of dog worshipers. He said he had seen some in Teheran. Some foreigners there had fed dogs at their tables, had washed and clothed them, fondled them in their laps and taken them riding in their carriages. Were they not dog worshipers?

An English sea captain, whose ship touched at Bushire, took a horseback ride through the streets of the city, but made so poor a display of horsemanship as to astonish and amuse the people. The next day a vender of fruits came on board the ship and said to the captain:

"I have made such an explanation as to free you from all reproach. There is no one who does not think that you are an expert rider, as becomes one of a nation of horsemen."

"And how did you do that?" asked the captain.

"I told them you were drunk."

Dr. Todd's Joke.

An amusing example of the Irishman's pronunciation occurs in a story told of the late Dr. Todd, the Irish archaeologist, who, although a great scholar, was not above perpetrating a practical joke. The London Spectator tells the story and says:

A very learned Englishman went to Dublin to examine some manuscripts in the library of Trinity college and was of course introduced to Dr. Todd, who one day in conversation told him that there was in Trinity college a curious instance of the survival of a habit dating from the time of the Danes; that at a certain hour of the afternoon—I think 6 o'clock—a porter went the round of the college ringing a bell and calling out in a loud voice, "The Dane's in the hall," when all the students rushed from their rooms to repel the invaders. So the learned but somewhat incredulous Englishman repaired to the college at 6 o'clock, and, sure enough, what Dr. Todd had told him came to pass, which he gravely related on his return to England. The summons of course referred to the dean.

The Three Fates.

The names of the three fates were Clotho, Lacheris and Atropos. To express the influence which they were believed to exercise on human life from birth to death they were represented as spinning a thread of gold, silver or wool, now tightening, now slackening and at last cutting it off Clotho, the youngest, put the wool around the spindle, Lachesis spun it, and the aged Atropos cut it off when a man had to die.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

Charging the Jury.

During reconstruction days a venerable negro, solemn and imposing in appearance, was elected a justice of the peace in a backwoods district of Georgia. His first case was one in which the defendant asked for a trial by jury. When the testimony was all in and the argument had been concluded, the lawyers waited for the judge to proceed with his instructions to the jury. The justice seemed somewhat embarrassed. Finally one of the lawyers whispered to him that it was time to charge the jury. Looking at the jury, with a grim judicial air the judge said:

"Gentlemen ob de jury, sense dis is a very small case I'll jes' charge ye a dollar an' a half apiece."

WHAT IS.

I am the mote in the sunbeam, and I am the burning sun;
"Rest here!" I whisper the atom; I call to the orb, "Roll on!"
I am the blush of morning, and I am the evening breeze,
I am the leaf's low murmur, the swell of the terrible seas.
I am the net, the fowler, the bird and its frightened cry,
The mirror, the form reflected, the sound and its echo, I;
The lover's passionate pleading, the maiden's whispered fear,
The warrior, the blade that smites him, his mother's heart-wrung tear.
I am intoxication, grapes, wine press, and must, and wine,
The guest, the host, the tavern, the goblet of crystal fine;
I am the breath of the flute, and I am the mind of man,
Gold's glitter, the light of the diamond, the sea pearl's luster wan,
The rose, her poet nightingale, the songs from his throat that rise,
Flint sparks, the flame, the taper, the moth that about it flies.
I am both Good and Evil; the deed, and the deed's intent,
Temptation, victim, sinner, crime, pardon, and punishment;
I am what was, is, will be; creation's ascent and fall;
The link, the chain of existence; beginning and end of All.
—Oriental Lyric Translated by Fanny Raymond Ritter.

His Villainy.

A lady in New York who had been tenderly reared married an adventurer who had many ups and downs. She stood by him bravely and faithfully through poverty and even in disgrace. He served a sentence in Sing Sing for forgery; she took a room near the prison to be near him, and by her devotion secured a commutation of his sentence. Late in life she abandoned him, informing her friends that he was a villain. She had discovered that all the love letters he sent to her were copies of letters sent to his first wife.

A Memory For Faces.

Six-year-old Marie is a minister's daughter, says Lippincott's Magazine, and Christmas, 1905, found half a dozen dolls under the Christmas tree. There they stood during the Christmas week, when, realizing that six or seven dolls in addition to other toys was too much of a good thing, mother, who had the look-ahead temperament, resolved to kidnap one of the family and put it by for the next year. To all appearance the scheme was carried through successfully, as no inquiries were made. So on Christmas, 1906, the last year's baby reappeared under the new tree. Next morning Marie, accompanied by the usual number of admiring grownups, was taken to view the tree. Fixing her eyes on the absentee and holding her dimpled chin with a chubby hand, after a period of deep thought she remarked in a puzzled tone:

"Where the dickens have I seen that face before?"

About Bach.

Mr. W. S. Gilbert was once visiting at the house of a wealthy woman. She asked Mr. Gilbert several questions about musical composers to show that she knew all about them.

"And what about Bach?" she asked. "Is he composing nowadays?"

"No, ma'am," answered Gilbert. "He is decomposing."

Gave Back His Money.

A fabulously rich man who is quoted for his economies died. He appeared at the gates of heaven. He was met by St. Peter. Gabriel, as recorder of deeds, sat near by. St. Peter said:

"What have you done to cause you to think you should come into heaven?"

"Well," said the applicant timidly, "I met a crippled child and gave it two cents."

"Um-m," replied St. Peter, "that was something. Is it all right, Gabriel?"

"Yes," grudgingly answered Gabriel.

"That is not enough. Anything else?" asked St. Peter.

"Yes. I met a newsboy. He was crying because he was stuck with his evening papers. I bought a paper."

"Um-m," said St. Peter, "that was good. Is that all right, Gabriel?"

Gabriel referred to his books and answered in the affirmative.

St. Peter thought an instant, then walked over to Gabriel. They consulted in low tones. Finally Gabriel closed his records with a bang and said impatiently:

"Oh, give him back his three cents and tell him to go to hell."

His Wife (writing)—Which is proper, "disillusioned" or "disillusionized?"

Her Husband—Oh, just say "married" and let it go at that.

Almost any stain can be removed by rubbing butter well into it if it is immediately washed with pure water and soap.

Troubles of the stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of is treating symptom only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys, as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restoartive has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Green's Pharmacy.

John Riha, a prominent dealer of Vining, Ia., says: "I have been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results." Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

STRONG Again

is what Mrs. Lucy Stovall, of Tilton, Ga., said after taking Kodol for Dyspepsia. Hundreds of other weak women are being restored to perfect health by this remedy. YOU may be well if you will take it.

Indigestion causes nearly all the sickness that women have. It deprives the system of nourishment and the delicate organs peculiar to women suffer—weaken, and become diseased.

Kodol For Dyspepsia

enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten. It nourishes the body, and rebuilds the weak organs, restoring health and strength. Kodol relieves indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, sour risings, belching, heartburn and all stomach disorders.

We Kind of Pitied Them.

On Sunday two people, a man and woman stepped from the train coming from Tyrone. They were peculiarly dressed and seemed kind of lost. The lady carried the baggage to the Bush House and asked permission to leave it set there saying they were poor missionaries and wanted to raise some money to pay their way on to Williamsport. The man was dressed like a minister in very poor circumstances and looked very much like an Amish gentleman. He gave his name as Rev. Geo. Messenger of Tenn. They had no money and the woman begged enough through the town to pay their way to Lock Haven. They sat around the station most all day except when they attended class at the Methodist Episcopal church.

The lady said they wanted to get to Williamsport where her son hopes to get a place to preach the Gospel. Well, that is a grand calling for some men and a minister of the Gospel should be highly honored and respected, but we honestly believe this man has missed his calling. We are not to judge, he may be a good sincere christian man, but we believe it would be more honorable for him to get down to some kind of work where he could make some money and save his mother from tramping from town to town begging money as she did in Bellefonte on Sunday.

The Colored Folks Picnic.

On Thursday the colored folks of Bellefonte picnicked at Hecla Park, and they claim to have had a royal time. The day was an ideal one for a picnic and fully three hundred from Bellefonte, Tyrone Altoona and Lock Haven gathered at this beautiful park for their annual outing. In the afternoon an interesting base ball game was played between the Hecla Park team and the Bellefonte Giants and what the Giants did to the boys at the park was good and plenty, why they didn't even give them enown water. Shut them out entirely, and what's more the Hecla boys had seven Bellefonte boys who are camping there playing on their team. The score was 5—0 in favor of the Giants.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

- William Humes sold his splendid driving horse to Col. W. Fred Reynolds.

—The engagement of Miss Adalade Merriman and Mr. John Blanchard has been announced. The wedding will occur sometime in the Fall.

—On Tuesday the stork visited the Hastings home in Bellefonte and left a darling little baby boy for Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hickok and the young man are getting along splendidly.

—Col. H. S. Taylor and his brother Harry will soon start on the building of a water plant to supply the people of Colevile with a good supply of pure water, which will be obtained from springs on mountain.

—The big three, Dick Brouse, Charley Moran and Frank McMahon, left this morning on their vacation. They will first go to Atlantic City then they expect to scout around different places and have a royal good time.

—A new walk is needed very much from the Ardell lumber office to Miller's store on Water street. The Borough Street Committee should look after this before some one breaks a leg and sues the town for damages.

—Prof. Ulsh of Lancaster who had been elected assistant principal of the Bellefonte High School to succeed Mr. Dunning, has notified the school board that he has decided not to come to Bellefonte and they are looking around for another capable man.

—Charles M. Piper, Jr. who has been a student at State College, has accepted a position with Joseph S. Sillyman, mining engineer of Altoona. Mr. Piper declined a position tendered him by the State Department of Health just about the time he accepted his present position.

—Prof. Charles Hughes will not teach at the Academy this winter as he will go back to his former position with the engineering Bureau in New York city. These people made him some very excellent offers which he accepted. We feel sorry to lose Mr. Hughes from the Academy Faculty as he was well liked by the student body.

—R. J. Henderson, who will be remembered by a number of friends in this place as a visitor at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Reuben Valentine, of Burnham, has accepted a position with the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York city. He had been associated with the president of the Southern Railways Co. up to the time of the latter's death.

—At the home of George W. McWilliams in Fairbrook the first of a series of McWilliams family reunions was held on Thursday. The original McWilliams came to this county in 1786, just after the close of the Revolutionary war, and settled in Ferguson township, pre-empting a homestead, and from that day to this the farm has not been out of the possession of a regular descendant of the original family.

- George Valentine is one of Centre county's young farmers who not only realizes that there is money in doing things by halves, but that whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well; at least doing the best it is possible for a man to do. He is not only bringing his herd of cows all up to pure blooded stock but this week he just completed a pair of silos at his barn which have a capacity sufficient to hold ensilage enough to feed a herd of twenty cows for eight months in the year. This will give him ample room to store a good quantity of the best food for cows obtainable.

—The many friends of Mrs. J. E. McGuinis, of Punxsutawney, who prior to her marriage was Miss Adaline Lyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lyon of this place, will regret to learn that she is in the hospital at Ridgway quite ill with typhoid fever. She went to Ridgway two weeks ago and took sick while there and the attack developed so quickly that she could not be taken home. Her mother Mrs. Lyon went out to Ridway on Friday and remained with her until Tuesday when she left for Pittsburg to attend the wedding of her son Robert, which occcured yesterday. Latest news from Mrs. McGuinis is that she is getting along as well as possible.

—The Johnstown Tribune says. A girl who works down town got home the other night at 6 o'clock. She took off the dress she had worn on the street, and pressed it to wear the next day; helped her mother get supper; washed up the dishes; finished a shirtwaist she had cut out last week, darned some stockings, and at about 11 o'clock snatched up a paper to glance through before going to bed. She happened to see an article called "Hints to a Working Girl" and this is what she read: When you go home at night take a tepid bath, and massage your face carefully. Manicure your nails. Put on a loose white dress, or a dainty colored lawn, and then entertain visitors on the porch or visit some park, or better still, take a boat ride."

—A fellow by the name of Bechtel was arrested in Altoona and brought to Bellefonte on the charge of wife desertion.

—Jimmy Duff who is always a welcome visitor to Bellefonte, engineered the Lewisburg local into Bellefonte Thursday evening.

—Rev. J. W. Boal, of Centre Hall, contemplates making Bellefonte his future home and will move his family here quite soon if he can find a house to suit him.

—Hearing a snake hiss among some logs, Daniel Conrad, a farmer near Newry, looked and saw a host of baby snakes crawling down their mother's throat.

—George Spangler who lived near the station at Blanchard shot and killed himself on Saturday night. The reason for the rash act is not given he leaves a wife and seven children.

—The Bellefonte Electric company are now at work putting in a foundation for another engine at their plant on Lamb street. They already have put down the foundation for a new set of dynamos.

—The walk in front of the Curtin Memorial is certainly a dandy. It looks like a man wearing overalls with a silk hat on his head. The pavement really should be repaired before winter sets in.

—Emma Brown was coming out of the Match Factory on Friday when she struck her head on a plank, cutting a large gash. She was rendered unconcious for a short time, but is getting along alright.

—Rev. James P. Hughes received the sad intelligence that his grandson, the 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs Edward Hughes had passed away. The cause of the little boy's death was paralysis. The funeral occurred on Tuesday.

—Miss Myrtle Barnhart who has been clerking in George Rush's store resigned her position and went into the office of N. W. Spangler Esq. as stenographer. Miss Shaeffer, Mr. Spanglers former stenographer has gone over to J. A. B. Millers office.

—A Court at Lancaster has decided that when a carrier leaves a newspaper at the door of a subscriber, the paper at once becomes the property of a subscriber. If any unauthorized person takes away the paper, thus depriving the owner of the same, the act is a theft and the offense is larceny.

—Although his last piece of work for the Dean Electric Company, of Elyria, Ohio, was in Sheboygan, Wisconsin, Clyde W. Smith is spending a ten days' vacation at his home in Centre Hall. When he returns to work, he will be one of a force of men to install a large telephone switchboard in Detroit, Michigan.

—It is altogether propable that Mr. and Mrs. James B. Strohm will become citizens of Centre Hall next spring. Mr. Strohm has been teaching the grammar school in Centre Hall for several years and has been getting along so well and is liked by both scholars and patrons to such an extent that he may be regarded a permanent fixture. It is to be nearer his heart's work that is responsible for his contemplated move to move to town.

—R. B. Taylor the coal dealer has purchased a dandy new street sprinkler known as "The Celebrated Studebaker," one of the finest made. After this delightful rain passes away and our roads become dusty, Mr. Taylor will demonstrate what a splendid thing a sprinkler is. This is what Bellefonte has needed for years, now we have it and the citizens should take advantage of having the road in front of their homes and places of business sprinkled right.

—Monday Miss Myra Humes entertained at dinner at six o'clock, in honor of Mrs. James Harris' guests. Wednesday Mrs. Thomas R. Hayes entertained at dinner at one o'clock in honor of Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Beaver's guest, and of J. H. Orbison and Mrs. Orbison. Thursday Miss E. M. Thomas entertained at the Country club in honor of Miss Mary Thomas, of Philadelphia. Twelve covers were laid for the dinner given by Mrs. S. A. Bell, on Saturday, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Schank, of West Union, Iowa. Fourteen little people were at Mrs. J. L. Spangler's party Wednesday, given in honor of her grandson, master Jack Blackburn, of Philadelphia.

—During the past five years the Herald Square Stock Company achieved unusual success by its complete renditions of famous plays, and was undoubtedly the very first to give melo-dramatic productions at popular prices. The experiment proved wonderfully successful and gained a national reputation for this organization. On their appearance at the Opera House all of next week, many celebrated plays will be given for the very first time at popular prices. Among the list includes "The Little Princess" "Dora Thorne" "Wanted A Husband" "Man to Man" "On the Frontier" "The Ullansman" etc., each presentation will be given entire, as it is one of the boasts of the attraction that no local scenery is used during the entire engagement. There will be high class vaudeville introduced between the acts. Ladies 15 cts. Monday night. Prices 10, 20, 30cts. Tickets on sale at Parrish's.

—The public schools will open on Monday Sept. 2

—Asters for sale at the Reformed church parsonage Proceeds for the new chapel.

—Mrs. Shelden of Philadelphia entertained a number of ladies Tuesday morning at the Hotel Bush.

—The Resrick—Hoy reunion is being held at Hecla Park Wednesday. A very large crowd of the two familes were in attendance.

—Mr. Williams the tinner at State College will move his family from Bellefonte to State College as soon as ever he can secure a house.

—Don't forget the Love Feast will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday evening at 7:30. Rev. James B. Stein the pastor will be home from his vacation and will have charge of the services.

—James Emerick a former Centre countian died in Altoona on Tuesday evening, aged 85 years. He was born in Penns Valley. He will be buried Friday morning from the train. Interment in the Union cemetery. Rev. Dr. Platts will officiate.

—Mr and Mrs. Harrison Dukeman of Clearfield and Miss Dukeman of of Bellefonte and John Osman are among a party of campers up near Ramsey along the Fall Brook Railroad. They will remain in camp about 10 days.

—On Tuesday E. F. Garman, Jack Dale, Henry Linn and William Garman went up to Snow Shoe Intersection. The water looked so tempting that they all jumped in and took a good old-fashioned bath. Bill Garman showed them some stunts in the swimming line. The crowd hiked it back.

—On Sunday evening September 1st the Epworth League of Bellefonte will have their "Rally Day" exercises. The program is filled full of good things and all who attend will certainly be benefited. The services will begin at 6:30, the people of Bellefonte are cordially invited to attend.

—The Misses Lowery's who are entertaining a number of young ladies at their home on Bishop street gave a delightful straw ride to Pleasant Gap the beginning of the week. They all reported having had a delightful time, only when they got back they felt awfully. Well you know how you would feel riding 10 miles in a hay wagon.

—Two fellows from the country arrived in town Wednesday and got pretty full of "boozerine" and when one was driving his team toward the freight depot, he didn't make the turn in time and the result was the tongue of the wagon struck a telephone pole at the Potter—Hoy ware house. The driver was locked up in the cooler to sober up. From the amount of arrests that are being made lately the borough Treasury should swell away up. See how much does it cost each man?

—Wilber D. Twitmire won the hearts of the Tyrone Fans by winning his Try Out game by a score of 9 to 3 against Philipsburg. The way he had the Philipsburg best batters fanning the air looks good to Tyrone, but when with three on bases and two out he drove out a 3 base hit, that proved that he was all there with the goods. Out of 4 times up Twit got 3 hits, 2 of them being for 3 baggers. Porte who has been catching for Twit for the last two seasons also put up a pretty game.

—We made mention of the fact that Prof. Charles Hughes returned last week from a student hunt down east. The number of students he secured is not definitely known, but he visited the cities of Williamsport, Milton Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Pottsville, Mahanoy city and Harrisburg, New York city and Philadelphia, from most of these places some students will come, and as it is altogether new territory very likely a lot of new fellows will be here this fall.

—On Tuesday contractor Henry Lowry celebrated his 55th birthday. The entire day was passed at home in a peaceful quiet manner, but when the shades of night began to fall the quietness of the day was turned into a jolly, happy, noisy party. Fully eighty guests were present to help him close up his accounts of his 55th year. An orchestra was present to furnish music for the occasion. Dancing, singing and games of all kind were the amusements of the evening. At the close of the celebration delicious refreshments were served. Toward the wee small hours of the next morning the guests wended their ways home, wishing Mr. Lowry many happy returns of the day.

—A letter was received from the Cook family who are living in New Mexico and the message is filled full of interesting and startling news. They are perfectly satisfied in this far away western country and getting along splendidly. Mrs. Cook and her daughter Miss Hazel have both learned to ride bronco ponies and travel all over the mountains on these animals. Harry and Arthur Cook have large interests in the mines and are considered very wealthy. Miss Hazel Cook had the honor of breaking in her own pony which she prizes very highly. We hope to hear of them getting their share of this worlds goods, and coming back to Old Centre County with lots of of money.

Both young ladies are very efficient in this work and we are pleased to know that they have secured these positions. Miss Snyder is known all over the county as one of the best Milliners we have in Bellefonte and her hats and bonnets are always the latest designs and patterns.

The First Bible Day Cantata.

Last Sunday forenoon, in Manu's School house, seven miles west from Howard, Missioner Crittended conducted a Bible Day cantata, the first service of the kind held in Northern Central Pennsylvania. The members of the Rural Bible School there took part in a manner very commendable. The large room was fully occupied with an attentive and interested audience.

The varied exercises, all bibical interspersed with praise, were not only entertaining but could not fail to be very "profitable for instruction in righteousness."

Last year's record—Every out of city graduate located in a satisfactory position. We can place you. Write for "THE PROOF."

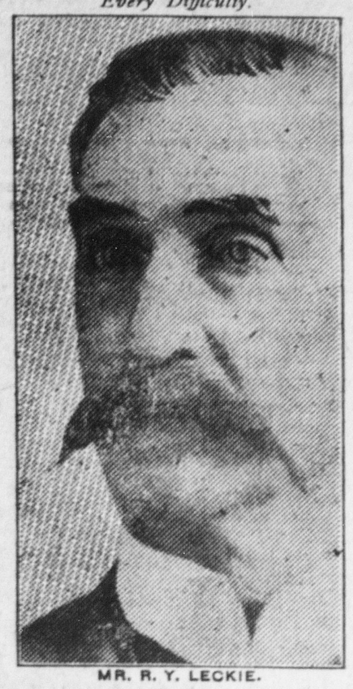
GOOD DIGESTION

With Good Digestion a Man Can Overcome Every Obstacle, Conquer Every Difficulty.



MR. R. Y. LECKIE.

MR. R. Y. LECKIE, Keno, Miss., writes:

"I write to tell you of the great benefits that Peruna has accomplished for me. It has cured me of catarrh and seemingly all the other ills that I was subject to.

"I can eat anything before me and digest anything I eat. Physically I am a new man."

With weak or deranged digestion, the source of strength and vitality is impaired, the nerves are weak, the blood circulates feebly.

No man is capable of thinking accurately or doing anything vigorously while suffering with indigestion.

To rid the stomach of catarrh will produce clean, healthy mucous membranes and thus correct the digestion.

Peruna has the reputation the world over for doing this very thing. A course of Peruna promptly and completely sets the digestive organs at their true function.

Took a Straw Ride.

On Tuesday about twenty-five young ladies and gentlemen guests of Miss Emma and Mary Smith took a straw ride across the mountains to Centre Hall The destination was the Krape home where they were welcomed cordially.

They were taken on this merry trip by Albert Thompson who handled the four header up and down the mountain, in a great old style. He is a sober careful driver and no one need fear going out whenever he has a hold of the reigns It was rather dark coming back over the mountain and the young men in the crowd gathered large bunches of brush and burned it along the way to give light so that the driver could see the road. The bunch arrived home about o'clock Wednesday morning.

THEATRE FOF PHILIPSBURG.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Building to Be Erected.

We have it from reliable authority that Philipsburg is really to have a fifty thousand dollar opera house in the near future, built by a group of local capitalists. When the names of Atherton & Barnes, Passmore & Rowland are mentioned in connection with the project, it is time to sit up and take notice.

We understand the projected new play house is to occupy the southwest corner of Front and Spruce streets, 66 feet front by 110 feet deep. It will be planned after the Garrick and is to be built of buff brick and handsomely finished and fitted up with the latest and best equipment with a commodious stage and seating capacity of nine hundred or a thousand. With a population so largely made up of the fellow countrymen of the world's greatest playwright, a town without an opera house is Hamlet with the ghost left out. Spruce street is a little to far down to exactly meet the approval of everybody, but it suits the parties most interested, which is the main thing.—Philipsburg Ledger.

The Grangers Picnic.

Large preparations are being made by the committee of arrangements for the great annual Encampment and Grange Fair, September 14th to 20th inclusive, Grange Park, Centre Hall.

A large building is being erected for the exhibition of agricultural and horticultural products, and the arrangement of camp is being generally revolutionized and improved. Additional tents have been secured to meet the increased demand of camping parties. The exhibit of the State College and State Experiment Station will be installed in new and larger quarters.

Cash premiums will be paid for every meritorious product placed on exhibition from farm, orchard, garden and vineyard. Every one who will contribute to the exhibition will be rewarded.

The entertainments each evening will be the best ever given. The name of Dr. George P. Bible, the head of the Bible family of entertainers, guarantees entertainment in its true sense.

This promises to be the largest Exhibition and Fair ever held on Grange Park Camp opens on Saturday, the 14th of September, when all tents will be in readiness.

All railroads in Pennsylvania will sell excurison tickets to Centre Hall and return, including Baltimore, Md., and Elmira, N. Y. Persons desiring detailed information should write to the chairman, Leonard Rhone.

The Lyon Reunion.

The Lyon reunion will be held on Thursday, September 5, in the Schneck grove, one mile east of Howard. This is not for the Lyon family only, but the public is cordially invited to attend and bring provisions enough along for the day. There will be addresses by several prominent speakers; music will be furnished by the Beech Creek drum corps, and an interesting game of ball will be played in the afternoon.

By order of committee: John Schneck, president; Samuel Lyon, vice president; William Lyon, treasurer; John Lyon, secretary; Harry Lyon, assistant.

Old Farmer Jones Says.

Saturday evening when I went to take the Bellefonte Central train it had gone the conductor thought everybody was on that was going up the valley he counted the passengers that had come down and as my brother Pete walked down and rode back he mistook him for me and started his train ahead of time so I was left I stayed all night at the Bush House and intended to get up early and walk home but the porter said he did not see the clock and forgot to call me early so I was late starting but left about 8 o'clock walked to Coleville where they were just eating breakfast I then went up the mountain road and the only person I met was a fine red steere right in the middle of the road it looked at me and I looked at him then he snorted and I walked on up the road further all I saw was ten dollars reward for any person carrying fruit off this farm as I did not see any fruit to carry I did not take any, up a little farther was a big notice on a chestnut tree about three feet in diameter no trespassing on this paoperty just as though I would crawl up that chestnut tree trespass all over it, I then met my old friend Joseph Lowry and wife, shook hands she said she knew me I was Mr. Antymyer but she did not know it was Bill Jones, on on I went and as there was no trespass notices on any of the huckleberry bushes I just helped myself, soon I reached a house where the boys were looking up some bargains in Roe Searsbuck & Co. catalogue after a few minutes talk departed and soon found myself in the cow boys tent where some fellows are camping from Bellefonte I asked the name of the party but they said it was "Rummy's" tent they showed me the first "Ward" then the "Taylor" sewed up a slit I got in my pants crawling over a barb wire fence they seemed very happy and are living high, on my way back I asked them what time it was and they said "Milking time" say does any of you know Bess Saucepan, shouldent wonder for she's a dreadful nice critter, when I was young daddy usto make a great fuss bout my stickin to hum so clus and said I might as well be out courtin Bess as to be squattin round the fire doin nothins well I tell'd him it wan't no kind of use, but the old man wouldn't hear nothin again his own opinion; so I had to go, just to please the old man, Bess use to go to the old church up on the hill at Fillmore you know up Uncle Jarvis' lane near the cider press right by the orchard well it wan't there, well I went off, dressed tarnation slick, I kind's guess I rubbed to the matter of about two pounds of tailer candles in my head jest to make it curl; but 'twant no use it stuck out jest like hogs bristles. But some how or other I got myself in pretty slick order, had on my best bib and tucker I won at the raffle and I bolted up to church with my hands in my pockets whistlin Johnny get your gun, felt as big as Gen. Grant and the first thing I see was Bess steppin off her horse and up I runs to speak to her, when long comes that tarnal Sam Homan dressed all fired nice looked as if he'd been put up in a bandbox, and walk her right off fore I could say how de due, Bess, if I dident look nation sheepish then taint no matter I blushed just as blue as an indigo bag "never mind" says I meetin wont allways last so I went up to the house to wait for her, purty soon long she come by gosh she did look screamin nice I felt so flustrified I did not know what on earth to say to her "Bess" and says "don't my face look all over goose pimples?' and blame my buttons if Bess and that tarnal Sam Homan dident snoot right out and how we all went in. Bess handed me a chair but I dident look where I was a settin and down I went "Ker wolep" right on Besses new bonnet and fix ups overeet the cheer and sprawled right on the floor and split my new coat right down the back wide open but Bess pined it up and that give me a kind of an infection for her, and I staid to tea; but I was so confiustrated I spilt my tea all over Sams pants, and he called me a darned awkard hog.

I never said a word the whole durn time; Bess had to do all the talkin and I answered yes and no, says she to me, Bill did you ever hear a serenade? no says I Miss Bess I never heard of Sarah Nade; but I've hearn tell of Elly phant and Sam the fool snorted at that tue. But Bess said she dident mean Sarah nade it was what the town chaps call music when they go out to play at nights, and then she looked kind of slantandicular at Sam and I'm pretty sartin he gin her a buss, but I see that Bess loved Sam more than she did me so I got ready to back out; and says Bess to me says she I spose your goin to see that Kate Krums says I Bess I guess I got a little more taste than to run arter sich cattle at that and then she looked at me quite smart, and that tickled me all but to death and I riz up to make a bow, but some how or other I cotched my feet together and I sprawled right agin her, and upset her right into Sam's lap she got up darn mad, I tell you and says she that's tue bad? but I had to snort right out, for I never know'd afore that Bess wore false hair and when she fell her hair catchers come off and she looked just like a screech owl; and says I Bess never mind we are goin to shear our black sheep next Sunday, and I'll send you wool enough to make a wig, on that riz Bess's Ebenezer and she made one poke at me with a broom but it want no use, I was on the road hom, and I told dad and dad laughed; see dad always laughs whenever any thing tickles him and twixt you and me, that' the last time I ever went to see Bess Saucepan.

ONE OF THE BEST ROADS IN THE STATE

Almost Completed Between Bellefonte and Milesburg.

In about three weeks the new state road will be completed. R. B. Taylor the contractor has had on an average of thirty-five men and five teams at the job forty days. The citizens of Bellefonte are fortunate to have a road of this kind between the two towns and we know it will be fully appreciated. When finished the road will be twenty feet wide, made almost of solid rock to a depth of ten to twenty inches and near the McCoy chain works to the hump over three and a half foot of fill has been constructed.

A bridge made of solid concrete at the Pleasant View chapel is also a nice addition to the new road. The big ten ton rooler is doing its work to perfection and over a thousand feet of stone has been laid and rolled into almost a solid rock. It is said by persons who have seen the state road at Snow Shoe and the one near Bellefonte, that the road Mr. Taylor is laying is much more substantial and will stand the best test and heavy traveling a great deal longer. The work is being shoved along rapidly under the careful instructions of Manager Philip F. Garbrick. Samuel Diebl the State Inspector is on hand from early morning until late at night to see that everything is done according to the contract.

While this road is being laid, a stretch between the quarries and Linn street is in a fearful condition and it would be well to have this road fixed up in good shape like the other one.

It will only be matter of a few days until we can boast of one of the best pieces of road in the state of Pennsylvania.

It Does Seem Cheap.

Now you fellows who are thinking about getting married we want to whisper something in your ear, it don't cost much to get the licence, why if you and your girl are over twenty one it costs fifty cents to get the papers, and if your girl is not twenty one it will cost you a round plunker, and if you are both under age it means one and a half. But it would be best to wait a few years and follow the example of the young man Speer who writes the funny That Column in the Centre Democrat. But still he claims he is not twenty one and that he is waiting until he reaches that age so he can can save fifty cents. He and the Register are such good friends and we think it would be no more than right that he get one for nothing and then we would be rid of him in the Batchlor Association.

Susquehanna Lower than for many Years.

The Susquehanna river at Columbia is lower than it has been for many years, and at noon the water was three inches below low water mark, and is still going down.

It has been almost three weeks since ferryboat service between Columbia and Wrightsville was discontinued, and it will require many rains to bring the water up sufficiently for navigation. The present low water mark was established in 1803. Up at Marietta, the river is lower than at Columbia, and one can walk almost across on a deposite of sand. The Wild Cat ferryboats are only able to reach the sand bar, where passengers are taken on board. Tuesday several teams were driven to points where steamers landed.

Before Squire Keichline.

On Tuesday John Fisher of Nittany had Paul Swartz of Howard arrested for adultery then Fishers father had Mrs. John Fisher arrested for the same crime. The proceedings all though were too spicy for print. The case was bound over to court.

On Wednesday afternoon Harry Jodon of Milesburg was walking down the alley back of the Brockerhoff House when he was attacked by Charley Nighart and Joe Wolf. The two of them gave Jodon a pretty good beating. They were arrested and put in the jug. The time for the hearing has not been set. Both Nighart and Wolf were intoxicated or they would not have done what they did. We hope the boys will get out of the scrape O K and then be good.

HARRY KELLER,
J. THOMAS MITCHELL,
Solicitors.

What a splendid type of tireless activity is the sun as the psalmist describes it issuing like "a bridegroom from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race." Every man ought to rise in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest, eager for the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient vitality and behind this lies a deficient supply of pure, rich blood and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is no thing that will give a man strength and energy, as will Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves, feeds the brain, builds up enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and power which makes the struggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation as it contains no alcohol. The ingredients are plainly stated on the bottle-wrapper. It does not "brace-up" the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound and vigorous health.

Wm. Bailey Dead.

William Bailey, a brother of county commissioner John G. Bailey, died at his home in Kansas City, Mo., on Wednesday morning. He was the son of John and Nancy Bailey, deceased, and was born in the Glades, in Ferguson township fifty-four years ago. He went west twenty-five years ago and had grown to be quite prominent in railroad circles. The funeral will be held Saturday, burial will be made in the cemetery at Kansas City.

The Rink Opens Monday Night

The lovers of roller skating will hail with gladness the news that Manager Richard Taylor will open the skating rink on Monday evening. The skates have all been put in excellent shape and a great many new pairs added. The floor has been thoroughly scraped and is in splendid condition. The Coleville band will be their to enliven the opening with their excellent music. Monday night, Sept. 2nd.

To Organize a Camp.

All veterans of the Spanish-American War and incidents thereto are requested to meet at the Armory of Company B. at Bellefonte, on Friday evening, August 30th, 1907, at 7:30 o'clock, to discuss the advisability of instituting a United Spanish War Camp. Do not forget the date or hour.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

Woman's World

MRS. THOMPSON SETON.

Her New Book an Experience of the Hunting Field.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, wife of Ernest Thompson Seton, is shining forth in a field that few women have entered, that of the gun, the camp and the pack pony. Her latest book, "Nimrod's Wife," is a brisk and gay narrative of hunting experiences in the Sierras, in the Rockies, on the Ottawa river and in Norway. It is a great little book, one that the modern American woman will read with keen enthusiasm, wishing she had been a part of such scenes of care free excitement in the open. But the main point of interest of its 400 and more pages is that Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton is a crack shot, one of the mightiest of huntresses, a Mrs. Nimrod in all actuality who has brought down her moose, her bear, her deer, her record being most enviable among women with the gun.

MRS. ERNEST THOMPSON SETON.

All these tales of the hunting field Mrs. Thompson Seton relates with much gusto and snap. She is a born story teller and the incidents reel off vividly from her pen. Not until late in the book, when the chapters on Norway hunting are reached, does this woman hunter concede that she finally laid down her rifle for a camera and became a devotee of the "new hunting."

This brilliant set of entertaining anecdotes of Mrs. Thompson Seton's "kills" in the far west and in Canada is striking when it comes to be compared with Ernest Thompson Seton's emphatic announcements over a number of years that he only shoots for food, not for sport, and that his "good hunting" is altogether with the camera. Mrs. Seton's experiences, therefore, are piquant in the extreme, bound up in a book over her own name.

Neatness and Matrimony.

Scrupulous neatness, even to the smallest trifles, often determines a man's decision regarding the marrying of a girl more than any other thing. A good education, great ability or even exceptional beauty will not take the place of absolute cleanliness and tidiness. Most men will not overlook the lack of these things.

Men very quickly notice buttons off shoes, gloves, dress or coat, or soiled gloves, or spots upon the clothing, and are always prejudiced by them, because they probably indicate slovenliness in the home. Nothing is more abhorrent to a man than untidiness in a girl.

Nothing is so disappointing to the male sex as to find that the girl from whom so much was expected is found wanting in the matter of neatness and orderliness. Slovenliness is a very easy thing to fall into. We ought all to be on guard against it. After all, it is trifles that tell, small details in the matter of dress. Here is an example:

Not long ago a young man had occasion to travel by an early train every morning and got to know a pretty, well dressed young lady who always went by the same train. He fell in love—but one morning he became disillusioned. As the girl alighted from the train he saw a large hole in her stocking above the heel of her shoe. He was so particular about being neat himself that he could not stand untidiness in others. If this girl could be slovenly in small things, he argued, she would certainly be so in large and careless about the house. And he was perfectly right. All thoughts of asking her to share her life with him have vanished.

Slovenliness in dress without doubt indicates a similar defect in home life. We should all try to make a good impression on people. The world judges a great deal by outward appearances. Any man fights shy of a girl who evidently cares so little about what people think that she will not go to the trouble of being neat. "Oh, it doesn't matter! No one will see!" the careless and untidy girl often exclaims. But people do so and silently note all that is wanting.

Girls who desire to make a good impression, who desire men to respect and admire, must pay attention to the smallest details. Carefully mended gloves, tidy shoe laces, scrupulously clean lace—even if it bears evidence of mending—are all indicative of neatness and self respect. A girl who looks after her personal appearance will see that the home is scrupulously tidy and orderly.

There is an old proverb that "it's bad to be poor, but it's doubly bad to look poor." The girl who is tidy and neat in the little details of her dress will not show the empty state of her purse nearly so much as she who allows her clothes to become draggled and unkempt, and the tidy girl will certainly be far more likely to meet a good and worthy man, whose honest, strong hands will labor for her.

Did Likewise.

"Upon my word, it's too bad," grumbled Mrs. Dazzle in a complaining voice. "I shall really have to punish those dreadful children."

"Why, what have the little dears been up to now?" inquired the henpecked husband.

"They have made my sewing room into a perfect bear garden," answered his wife. "Nothing is in its right place. Cotton, wool, pins, scissors, needles and all my working materials are jammed in odd corners anyhow."

"That wasn't the children, dear," said Mr. Dazzle in his suavest tones. "I did that."

"You did it, did you?" snapped his wife. "And pray what possessed you?"

"My kindness of heart prompted me to do it. As you straightened up my room and arranged all my books and papers so beautifully I thought I'd put your sewing room in order—so I did."

Watermelon Cake.

This consists of two parts, the white portion imitating the rind and the pink made like the center. It has a green frosting, and in the pink part are raisins to represent seeds. Divide the same white cake batter in two parts, tinting the one portion with pink sugar until the shade desired. A little strawberry juice may also be put in. Add the raisins dredged with flour. Now it will take two persons to manipulate the batter when pouring in the round mold in which it is to be baked. Let one put in the white part for the border, while the other adds the pink center. Bake about an hour in a moderate oven. When done cool in the mold, then invert on a round platter and ice thickly with icing colored green with a little spinach juice.

Children's Pocket Money.

As soon as a child is old enough to ask for a penny to spend for itself a small weekly allowance should be given and the child taught to save a portion of it for presents, etc. No matter how few the pennies a child should know just how many to expect during the week and on what day.

This will teach the value of money—a valuable lesson—and it will also teach the little one how to be generous and self denying by carefully saving up some of those same cherished pennies for a present for some one else.

Packing a Coat.

A useful thing for wives to know when they are packing up their lord and master's clothes is how to fold a man's coat. There is a knack in it that it will aid domestic happiness for her to master. Lay the coat out perfectly flat, right side up. Spread the sleeves out smoothly, then fold them back to the elbow until the bottoms of the cuffs are even with the collar. Fold the revers back and double the coat over, folding it on the center seam. Smooth out all wrinkles and lay it on a level surface in the trunk.

Save tea leaves for washing varnished paint. When sufficient leaves have accumulated steep them for thirty minutes in a tin vessel and then strain through a sieve. This water will give varnished paint a newer and fresher appearance than a washing with soap and water.

THE BABY'S RASH.

Hints to Anxious Mothers Who Discover Red Spots.

Nothing strikes more terror to a young mother's soul than an appearance of rash on her baby. Unless the eruption is prickly heat, which even the most inexperienced person is likely to know, it indicates illness, and a physician should be called.

But while waiting for him her mind may be much relieved by knowing something of the different forms rash takes and precisely what they mean. For instance, scarlet fever, that most dreaded of all illnesses, is not to be mistaken for measles by a person versed in the indications of both. In scarlet fever the eruption is bright colored and the spots are so close together that they seem to run in one mass, though each little speck is really clearly defined. It begins on the chest or about the neck and spreads quickly.

Measles show first, to the inexperienced, on the face, but a physician will usually see small spots in the mouth before they appear elsewhere. This particular eruption that develops rapidly from the face to the body is accompanied by swelling and is blotchy.

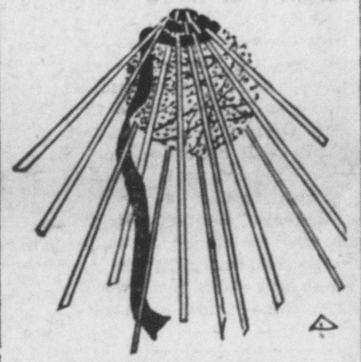
Rash that is part of chicken pox appears, too, on the face first, as a rule, but its formation is quite different from that seen in measles. In the former it is in little lumps that quickly develop into blisterlike looking things. It does not break out all at once, but appears in rotation in different parts of the body, so that at first one portion may be quite clear of any eruption while another is covered. It disappears by drying into crusts that drop off after a time.

German measles, less serious than the other form and frequently first mistaken for it, may show by a rash before there are any fever symptoms. The eruption is usually much paler than in real measles and may be either tiny or fairly large. It sometimes runs in together, but as a rule remains clearly separate and defined. It lasts a shorter time than in measles and may fade after two days.

LAVENDER DUMBBELLS.

They Make Charming Trifles For Bazaar Stalls.

Take about a dozen stalks of lavender and tie them together at the base of the flowers with one end of a yard of mauve baby ribbon, shape the flowers into a ball, using extra pieces of flowers to fil up where necessary, and wind cotton round to keep all secure.



THE DUMBBELL WHEN STARTED.

Then bend each stalk down over the ball and thread the ribbon in and out of the stalks until the flowers are completely covered. Now take a dozen more stalks of lavender and make another ball in the same way. When the two balls are finished intermingle their stalks and bind firmly with the two ends of ribbon which should have been left loose and fasten off by tying in a smart bow. These lavender dumbbells will be found to sell splendidly at bazaars and look pretty made in various colors.

The Perfumes of Araby.

Sometimes a combination of two or more odors gives a much more delightful perfume than either used singly. For example, combine an ounce and a half of some really good violet extract with half an ounce each of rose, tuberose and cassia extract, and the result is a decidedly novel yet delicate and lasting perfume. If to this are added half an ounce of the tincture of orris root, five drops of oil of bitter almond and two and a quarter drams of triple rosewater, the odor is intensified, yet not too strongly.

If two and one-half ounces each of extract of rose and tuberose, with a gill of extract of cassia and two and one-half ounces of tincture of orris root, with a single grain of bitter almond oil, are well blended, a most excellent imitation of a fragrant violet perfume results.

These delicate extracts, it must be remembered, call for care and exactness in blending and most exquisite cleanliness in vessels and bottles, as the oils are so absorbent that they become spoiled, and one's time, money and work are all for naught.

Green Her "Hoodoo" Hue.

There are charms in great variety that superstitious women carry with them in the firm belief they are indispensable to their success at cards or in other ventures. Now a fashionable modiste in town says many of her customers are equally superstitious about colors. She made a green dress for a woman who liked it greatly. But within a fortnight she was back to the shop with a tale of woe. She said that whenever she had worn it ill luck had come to her or to a friend. The "hoodoo" was so pronounced, indeed, that she gave the gown away. She told the dressmaker never to make her another frock of that color. The unimaginative dressmaker couldn't see how the color made any difference; but, as she wanted to keep the customer, she was wise enough to nod in sympathy.

HOMEMADE KITE.

How the Handy Boy Can Construct an Excellent Flier.

The accompanying cut shows how a good kite may be made. Out of some straight grained, light wood—cedar preferred—make four sticks about one-eighth of an inch in thickness. Let two of them be twenty-two inches in length, one seventeen and one-half inches and the other thirteen and three-quarters inches. Place them as shown in the picture, and tack them firmly where they cross. Cut little notches at the ends of the sticks, and put a string around the whole frame, making it taut and tying it so that it will not slip.

Now cut out a piece of very thin manila paper—tissue paper would do, but thin manila is more serviceable—one inch larger all around than the frame, and paste the edge over the string. Make a small hole in the end of the sticks at A, B, C, D, E and F and put in a string loosely from A to F, from B to E and from C to D. Make a string loop from E to F, to which the tail of the kite is to be attached. The strings must come through to the paper side of the kite, not the stick side.

The cord by which you are to fly the kite should be attached where the strings cross each other; do this with a loose knot inclosing all the strings. For the tail, use a strip of muslin about one inch in width and fifteen feet in length and attach ten bobs made of newspapers tied up. If the kite should dive add more tail until it sails steadily.

Use a strong cord for the flying, and don't attempt it in a high wind. Kites always fly better in a moderate

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs: Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

FOUND ON DOOR STEP

IN WARM CLOTHING

A Rap on the Door Attracted Attention of Mrs. Mussina, who Found Basket Containing Little Wee Mite of Humanity.

CHILD WAS SENT TO THE HOSPITAL

A three-weeks old baby, well provided for, with clothing and food, was found on the door step of the residence of J. Wood Mussina. Jr., 829 Elmira street, shortly before 8 o'clock Friday evening. The extreme care with which the deserted child had been looked after before being abandoned relieved to some extend the harshness of the cruel act, but doubtless a mother in some part of the city spent a night of misery in her grief and shame for the course she followed in ridding herself of her child. The babe now is in the Williamsport hospital, sent there by Chief of Police Evans. Who the parents are may never be known, for not a line of writing could be found or anything else that would lead to the establishing of the child's identity. It is the first case of child abandonment in this city for several years, and is in a number of respects an unusual case.

Between 7.45 and 8 o'clock in the evening Mrs Mussina heard a rap at the door of her house. She responded and no one was in sight, but a basket stood on the doorstep. It was covered with white cloth and looked as though it might have been set down by some one.

Mrs. Mussina entered the house without opening it at first. She went to the door a second time, however and lifted the basket. It is needless to say that her surprise was great when she investigated and learned that the basket instead of holding the remnants of a picnic feast contained a wee mite of humanity—a tiny girl foundling.

Mrs. Mussina promptly notified the police. Chief Evans sent Night Captain Fincher to the Mussina residence to get the child. The Chief then called the hospital by phone and notified the authorities there that an abandoned child had been found and that he was sending the infant to the hospital. When the babe was examined by the resident physicians they pronounced the little girl about three weeks old.—Williamsport Gazette.

Another Big Game To be Played.

The Business Men of Bellefonte are going to buck up against the Professional Men in another game of ball in the near future the date of which has not been set. It is to be a benefit game but not for the hospital. This time the Logan Fire Company will receive all the proceeds. It is for worthy cause and the boys will appreciate this a great deal. They gave an entertainment in the Spring and only cleared $40.00. Now this game is to be played for them and we hope every lover of base ball will attend with their little quarter and see if they cannot raise $100.00 round plunkers for the boys. The line up we cannot publish at present, but we can say that good players will be on both teams.

Her Voice Twice Vanished.

Altoona, Aug. 22.—Within the past six years Miss Susie Kauffman, who was in normal health, has suddenly lost her voice, and being unable to speak above a whisper. For two years all her verbal communication with her family and friends was in a whisper.

Just as suddenly one day her voice returned, and she was overjoyed. She could articulate as well as ever, and no change could be noticed.

She continued to enjoy the possession of her vocal cords for two years and again the voice was lost.

Miss Kauffman despaired of ever recovering it again, and as time went on she became convinced that she was doomed to whisper all her life. Without any premonition whatever the voice came back again yesterday, and once more she has full power of her vocal organs.

Madame Rumor Says;

That there are moments when virtue is its own reward and others when it isn't.

That the pencil of the cartoonist is frequently more powerful than the pen of the editor.

That the man who ever strives to do his duty need fear nothing in this world or any other.

That the best of people occasionally lapse into a distressing and discreditable ill-nature.

That many a very pleasant and profitable summer vacation is passed in one's own back yard.

That a little act of thoughtlessness may entail weeks of suffering and apprehension upon others.

That unselfishness is a virtue which ennobles the character of its possessor and blesses the lives of its beneficiaries.

That after one has performed a certain daily stint it is only a cruel or an ignorant taskmaster who insists upon more.

Don't be Afraid to Applaud.

Manager Mishler has always contended that if theatergoers in Altoona would be as free and enthusiastic in applause as the audience is in the large cities, a better performance would be given. In fact, applause instills all players to enthusiastically render the very best in them. With this purpose in view we not the following particularly appropriate notice in the Mishler theatre programmes, which certainly should have everybody's hearty accord:—

NOTE—"Don't be afraid to laugh or applaud if you find a point that pleases you. If a song is good, applaud it; the encore is likely to be better than the original. If you hear a good thing applaud it. The audience can give half of the show if it but tries."

What a Great Chance For a Young Doctor.

The final meeting of Newberry citizens to act on the project of bringing to the town physicians to serve at the old rates of compensation was held Tuesday evening and action was taken along previously suggested lines, tending to result very shortly in the locating of one or two new doctors in the West End says the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

Chairman George M. Dunlap read the report of the committee that has for a week or more been at work. In this report all of the action relative to the doctors was detailed and a treatment also made of the failure of Newberry doctors to treat with the committee. Four applications from other physicians were reported and a list of 600 or more persons ready to support physicians who will serve at the old rates was turned over to the meeting. The report of the committee was adopted.

The final action of the meeting was the appointment of a committee of twelve to secure one or two physicians to locate in Newberry under the terms referred to. The committee will have the power of making a choice without again calling a mass meeting. A residence has already been secured for a home and office for one of the physicians who will be brought to Newberry.

No Escaping Bail Bonds.

District Attorney Herbert Cummings, Thursday in refusing to take any old kind of bail for Black Hand suspects, who were given habeas corpus, bearings was sustained by President Judge Sayidge.

The judge said that of all the bail bonds that have been "jumped" in the past fifty years in this county not one has been sued on or collected.

The judge then sent for the county commissioners and instructed them that bail bonds in the future would be the kind that would be collectible, and that they were to be collected.

A Japanese Proverb.

A Japanese proverb worth remembering:

"He who knows not and knows not that he knows not is a fool. Shun him.

"He who knows not and knows that he knows not is humble. Teach him.

"He who knows and knows not that he knows is asleep. Wake him.

"He who knows and knows that he knows is a wise man. Follow him."

An Answer in the Watchman.

The two young lady visitors in our town feel decidedly aggrived at what they regard an unwarranted and insinuating aricle that appeared in the last week's issue of one of the local papers and in order to publicly express their feelings have asked the use of our columns for the following:

"We have found Bellefonte to be a very hospitable town and if we have flaunted anything in the faces of the Bellefonte girls we hasten to assure them that it has been wholly unintentional and as for making an impression on the Bellefonte fellows permit us to inform them that our impressions were well founded before arriving here at all."

Sincerely

The Visitors.

P. S. Now you wouldn't have to guess very hard who these visitors are. Don't think that Bellefonte girls feel their presence so very much. Some one get a dozen lemons.

A LITTLE LEMON.

A Few Drops Add Piquancy to Many a Dish.

A little lemon juice does wonders for a host of dishes. Creamed oysters lose the strong fishy flavor which some persons charge them with if a few drops of lemon juice are cooked with the cream sauce.

Fried sweet potatoes sprinkled with a few drops of lemon juice and then with a little sugar after they are put into the frying pan are immensely improved.

Cauliflower dressed with drawn butter sauce is more delicious if a little lemon juice goes into the sauce before it is turned over the vegetables.

An appetizing soup made of the little green flageolets found at the grocer's, but too little known to the average housekeeper, was served at a pretty luncheon the other day with thin slices of lemon floating in each plate. A tablespoonful of whipped cream went into every plate too.

Carrot fritters, a favorite in one household at least, owe something of their tastiness to the few drops of lemon which sprinkle them just before they go to the table. These boiled carrot fritters are made in the same way as other vegetable fritters. They are cut into two or three pieces, according to their size, dipped into beaten egg and then into breadcrumbs and fried in hot fat.

Cold boiled cauliflower dressed with oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper and served on lettuce leaves makes an excellent salad.

Reade's Eccentric English.

Reade's use of the English language, too, was eccentric, not to say ludicrous. In "A Simpleton," when he wished to signify that two people turned their backs on each other in a fit of temper, he wrote, "They showed napes." Describing the complexion of the New Haven fishwives in "Christie Johnstone," he says, "It is a race of women that the northern sun peachifies instead of rosewoodizing." In "Readiana" he describes a gentleman giving a lunch to two ladies at a railway restaurant as follows: "He souped them, he tough chickened them, he brandied and cochinealed one, and he brandied and burnt sugared the other (brandy and cochineal and brandy and burnt sugar being Reade's euphemisms for port and sherry respectively). While he was preparing his series of articles on Old Testament characters he read what he had written to John Coleman on one occasion and came to this startling passage in his argument:

"Having now arrived at this conclusion, we must go the whole hog or none."

Coleman objected to this phrase.

"You don't like the hog, I see," said Reade. "Well, it's a strong figure of speech, and it's understanded of the people, but—yes, you are right. It's scarcely Scriptural, so out it goes."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Bass Are Real Cute.

It is related for a fact that the reason bass jump—and it is common practice of the fish—is because they wish to acquire grace and strength in testing their ability against that of fishermen.

Several men who say they know what they are talking about point out that bass do most of their jumping during the spring and are especially active just before the open season begins.

At this time they may be seen doing long distance jumps, somersaults and side stepping.

One bass expert goes so far as to say that he spent an entire afternoon watching a three pound bass dragging a long willow sapling through the water and acting as if it were caught on a hook.

Leaping into the air, it would turn in a half circle as if to disgorge the barb, and then it would swim backward in an endeavor to snap the branch.

This fisherman asserts that what jumping the bass do during the summer is merely to keep in practice and not get stale.—Philadelphia North American.

Improving Nature.

To "paint the lily; to gild refined gold," when taken in a literal sense, seem processes too absurd for serious deliberation. Flowers of unnatural hues, however, bloom in florists' windows, and the color green as applied to the carnation is no longer confined to the title of a book. But the Persians do even worse things in the name of beauty. They dress up their flowers, according to Mr. Wills in "The Land of Lion and Sun."

Persia is not a land of flowers. Zinnias, convolvulus, asters, balsams, wallflowers, chrysanthemums, marigolds and roses are the principal blooms of the country.

The Persians, not content with the plain flower, cut rings of colored paper, cloth or velvet and ornament the bloom, placing the circles of divers hues between the first and second rows of petals.

The effect is strange. One, at first glance, supposes he sees a bouquet of curious and bizarre flowers of entirely new varieties.

Seven Moons In One Night.

It is said that at Sonoma, Cal., the full moon rises and sets seven times in one night. The Indians call the place Sonoma valley, which means the "valley of many moons." The explanation is that there is a certain peak east of the town toward which you have to look to see the queer phenomenon, the mountain being so formed there that the moon rises into sight and sinks out of it seven times in succession.
